BREED THEATER.

"The O'Neill," Romantic Irish Drama, the Powerful Feature for Monday

Along the line of constant improvements in the class and style of the picture-plays at the Breed, Manager McNulty announces for his big feature picture for Monday and Tuesday only, the powerful romantic Irish drama, enthied The O'Neill.

This is one of the peerless Kalem productions, and, being made entirely in Ireland, the picture has a charm peculiarity its own. Every scene was made in Ireland on the identical spots made fameus by the incidents represented. The O'Neill, an Irish patriot, secretly returns to his old familiar to evidence. Judgo Shumway rulea made famous by the incidents represented. The O'Nelli, an Irish patriot, verdict, claiming that it was contrary secretly returns to his old familiar haunts from which he was obliged to that the verdict was contrary to evidence during times of oppression, and found a preclosuality of the contrary to evidence and ordered the verdict set found a proclamation offering a re-ward for his apprehension. He hastily takes to the country lanes that he might meet his ald friends, the peas-ants. One in particular, a frail old man, tottering with age, welcomed o'Nelll to his humble cottage and shar-of his last crusts of bread with him. ed his last crusts of bread with him. Touched with the abject poverty of his countrymen, O'Nelll determines to aid wayman, so, going to a secladed spot, he masked himself and lay in waiting. Soen a carriage appeared, and O'Nelli halts it, and politely requests the occupants to slight. They were an elderly gentlemen and his daughter Ellinore. O'Nelli, in a spirit of mockery, takes a ring from the girl and forces her to dance a few stops with him. Later, he learns of her presence at a masked ball and, carefully disguising himself, he goes, and meeting her, his identity is anscovered by the ring on his linger. O'Nelli makes his escape through a window, taking sash and all. The following day the outlaw meets Elinore, and arranges a meet-

Story, and Other Splendid Features. Realizing that the theater going public of Norwich, when they do go to see photo plays or moving pictures they insist on the best procurable, and lasting that in mind, James Chancy's Poli theater offers for today and to-morrow only, positively the strongest liketure programpie ever offered in this ity. Each and every reel of film was arefully selected and as each one is a feature it is only safe to predict that many will take advantage of sen-ing them. In the Migst of Tripoli is an Italian war picture made by the famons Cines company of Italy, It troops of Turks and Italian soldiers and as a beautiful story is interwoven it makes it doubly interesting. FOETRY,

THE PIPER.

I will take my pipes and go now, for the bees upon the sill.
Are singing of the summer that is coming from the stars.
I will take my pipes and go now, for the little mountain rill is pleading with the bagpipes in tender, crooning bars.

I will go o'er hills and valleys, and through fields of ripening rye,
And the linnet and the throwle and
the bittern in the sedge Will hush their throats and listen as the piper passes by
On the great long road of silver that ends at the world's edge.

I will take my pipes and go now, for the sand-flower on the dunes Is a-weary of the sobbing of the great white sea.

And is asking for the piper, with basketful of tunes.

To play the merry lilting that see all hearts free.

will take my pipes and go new, and God go with rou all.
And keep all sorrow from you and the dark heart's load.
will take my pipes and go now, for I hear the summer call.
And you'll hear the pipes a singing as I pass along the road.
Donn Byene, in Harper's Magazine.

ON WILD WINGS. think thou must have wandered far With spring for guide. And heard the sky-born forest flowers Talk to the wind among the show-hrough sudden doorways left ajar When the wind alghed.

Thou must have heard the marching sweep of blown white rain Go velleying up the tey kills. And watched with summer when the hills Muttered of freedom in their sleep And slept again.

And thy clear spirit, half-forlorn,
Seeking its own.
Dwelt with the nomad tents of rain,
Marched with the geld-red ranker
of grain.
Or ranged the frontiers of the morn,
And was alone.
